To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to highly recommend Sydney Redigan, whom I first met in 2011 at Wayne State University's College of Engineering. I served as the marketing and communications director there, supervising Ms. Redigan for nearly three years.

I was immediately impressed with Ms. Redigan's intelligent, warm and welcoming demeanor upon my arrival to the college. Ms. Redigan was able and willing to switch gears and collaboratively work toward a new director's vision for marketing and communications efforts at the college. She consistently proved to be highly creative, capable, dependable and resourceful, contributing greatly to the college's significant enrollment increases over the past few years.

Beyond that, however, I was struck by Ms. Redigan's character. She is kind, caring and calm—qualities that, combined with her impressive writing and communications skills and expertise, truly make her an employer's dream. She was a greatly valued team member at the college, trusted and respected by all her colleagues.

It was a great privilege to work with Ms. Redigan. I remain a huge supporter and advocate, and I have no doubt that she would be an incredibly valued employee for any lucky employer.

Sincerely,
